4-H INTRO CLUB

4-H in Calgary: Hands-On Learning for Today's Youth

When many families hear 4-H they still picture animals and agriculture, but 4-H has grown into a hands-on youth development program focused on life skills, leadership, and real-world learning for ages 9 to 15 in both urban and rural communities.

Traditional 4-H clubs run for a full year and include member led meetings, youth leadership opportunities, project work, record keeping, and Achievement Days. Intro Clubs are different. They are short term experiences designed for families who want to explore 4-H before committing to a full club year.

4-H Intro Clubs are now expanding beyond Calgary into North Central Alberta and are being delivered in partnership with community associations, schools, and homeschool groups. To date, Intro Clubs have delivered eleven short term clubs across Alberta, including nine in Calgary and two in Edmonton, engaging 128 youth aged 9 to 15. Three additional clubs are already scheduled in Calgary, Vermilion, and Bonnyville this summer.

Over six weeks, youth explore a variety of hands-on workshops while building confidence, communication, problem solving, and teamwork skills. Recent activities have included pottery, reptiles, baking and sourdough, food science, chocolate making, horsemanship, microgreens, robotics, painting, and behind the scenes tours.

For many families, Intro Clubs provide an easy way to discover whether 4-H is a good fit while meeting other youth and learning new skills.

To help families learn more, 4-H Intro Clubs is hosting a free Park Party at Dalhousie Community Association in NW Calgary on Sunday, September 13, from 2:30 to 4:00 pm. The event is open to new families, returning members, curious youth, local 4-H clubs, and community supporters.

The afternoon will include outdoor games, light snacks, gelato, hands-on activities, and opportunities to connect with local leaders and learn about upcoming programs.

For more information or to RSVP for the Park Party, contact introclubs@4hab.com.

News from the Friends of Nose Hill

by Anne Burke

As I write, it is Calgary Aboriginal Awareness Week. In 1979, the Native Urban Affairs Committee was established to represent Aboriginal issues and concerns. In 1987, the name was changed to the Calgary Aboriginal Urban Affairs Committee. I was contacted by a grade nine Math and Social Studies teacher who wanted to plan a tour of Nose Hill by a First Nations guide. There are a few documents related to the protocol for inviting Indigenous Elders. If you are in the Calgary area and need to connect with an Elder or Knowledge Keeper, you can consult the City of Calgary Indigenous Collaboration policy or the CBE Indigenous Education Protocol for local guidance. In First Nations, Métis, and Inuit cultures, the Elders are leaders, teachers, role models, and mentors. The CBE Indigenous Education team has kept wisdom and teachings shared orally from Elders and community Knowledge Keepers for several years. The CBE document represents a summary of those teachings. It also includes knowledge gained from other organizations and districts. The Alberta Teachers Association offers a guide to accompany the Association's Stepping Stones, Truth and Reconciliation resources. Crystal Manyfingers and her family are all members of the Kainai Nation of the great Blackfoot Confederacy who signed Treaty 7 in 1877. Crystal holds a B.A., B.Ed., and a Master's degree in Education (Adult and Workplace Learning) from the University of Calgary. She has written numerous magazine articles, published a children's book, and was awarded the Faculty of the Year Award for 2020 from Bow Valley College as a Learning Design Consultant for Indigenization and Decolonization of Curriculum, Research, and Innovation. Crystal serves on the Board of Directors for the Calgary Public Library as well as the Alberta Library Trustees Association.

Nose Creek Watchers

Community stepping into the watershed collecting valuable data that keeps an eye on the health of the Nose Creek watershed.

by Kristina Stephens, NCPS Council Member

Since 2023, the Nose Creek Preservation Society has been testing the waters of Nose Creek in partnership with the Alberta RiverWatch Institute's CreekWatch program. CreekWatch empowers citizen scientists to perform water quality tests and sample invertebrate diversity to provide the institute with valuable information on the health of our waterways.

Our scientifically accurate data is shared with the government and conservation organizations, which can aid in supporting sustainable watershed management. Our hope is that information we have been gathering about Nose Creek will aid in its preservation, especially in the wake of future developments.

Volunteers test the water on a weekly basis throughout the summer months (May to October). Tests are designed so that anyone can follow the step-by-step sampling guide, and gather accurate water quality data that includes:

- pH,
- dissolved oxygen,
- chloride,
- phosphates,
- ammonia,
- and turbidity.

There is a thing as too salty.

As a freshwater water source, Nose Creek should naturally have very little salt. However, the draining from agricultural fields and roadways within Nose Creek's thousand square kilometre watershed area has increased the salinity of the watershed. This has been shown through one of our most important water metrics, chlorine.

This increase in chlorine data has been evident at our 15 Street Bridge testing location in Northeast Calgary. It has consistently been above the 120mg/mL maximum that the Alberta Surface Waters' Environmental Quality Guidelines recommends for maintaining a healthy freshwater ecosystem. Increased salinity reduces the health of Nose Creek and will impact the plant, fish, and invertebrate diversity in the creek over time.

CreekWatch teams also sample for diversity of invertebrates, such as insects, snails, clams, and worms, where their presence, or lack thereof, as well as their abundance are important indicators of the quality of the water. Using a fine mesh sieve to catch invertebrates floating in the water and those that are stirred up from the creek bed, we identify and roughly count invertebrates that are present such as:

- caddisfly larvae,
- midges,
- water boatman,
- and the invasive Northern Crayfish.

Thankfully our team has been finding several types of pollution-sensitive invertebrates in Nose Creek, which indicates that the water is healthy enough for them to live and reproduce.

The more we know, the better choices we can make along the Nose Creek Watershed.

Our dream is to have several testing locations along the trajectory of both West Nose Creek and Nose Creek to monitor how the water quality is changing overtime, but we need an army of volunteers to make that dream a reality!

So far, our only active testing site is the 15 Street Bridge in Calgary, but we would love to have a consistent testing location in Airdrie in the Nose Creek Regional Park; where West Nose Creek meets Nose Creek in West Nose Creek Park; and at the confluence of Nose Creek and the Bow River by the Wilder Institute Calgary Zoo.

If you are interested in volunteering with our Creek Watch team, you can sign up on our website savenosecreek.com/creek-watch. We would love to see you out on the creek!

What If You Deserved Your Own Compassion

by Rebecca Pink, Registered Provisional Psychologist

When was the last time that you offered yourself the same kindness that you so freely give to others?

Most of us don't hesitate to comfort a friend who is struggling. We remind them that they're doing their best, reassure them that difficult times don't last forever, and gently encourage them to keep going. We can look into someone else's eyes, recognize their pain, and meet it with empathy, endless compassion, and love. Yet when we look in the mirror, that compassion can be dimmed or disappear altogether.

I've come to appreciate that self-compassion isn't something we master; it's something we practice. I'm reminded of that truth in conversations with clients every day. Beneath anxiety, stress, perfectionism, or self-doubt, there's often a quiet but a relentless inner voice whispering that we should be doing more, achieving more, or somehow being more. Over time, that voice becomes so familiar that we mistake it for the truth.

Here's the irony: many of us already know what helps us feel better. We know we need rest, connection, movement, creativity, or time in nature. Yet we convince ourselves we haven't earned those things until we've accomplished just one more task or met one more expectation.

But what if healing doesn't begin with doing more?

What if it begins by changing the way we speak to ourselves?

Self-compassion isn't about lowering our standards or making excuses. It's about recognizing our shared humanity. We stumble. We all carry lived experiences that others cannot see. And we all deserve the same grace we so naturally extend to the people that we care about.

This month, I invite you to pause when that inner critic begins to speak. Ask yourself: "Would I say these words to someone that I love?" If the answer is no, perhaps it's time to choose a kinder response.

Because maybe the compassion you so freely give to everyone else is the very compassion you've been needing and deserving all along. Take good care of yourself.

Divorce and Family Businesses

by Christopher Bungay, Divorce Lawyer

In many divorces, one spouse owns and runs a business. Alberta divorce law recognizes this kind of business as “family property.” This means that, in most of these cases, a business is an asset that must be valued and divided between the spouses as part of the divorce process. This point raises an obvious question: How is the business divided between the spouses?

The percentage each spouse receives depends on the roles each spouse played during the marriage. For example, if mom stayed home and raised the children, and allowed dad to build and run the business, the result would likely be a 50/50 split. Practically, this makes sense because at least half of the company’s success was based upon mom’s domestic contributions.

However, there are other circumstances where the division might not be equal. Let’s say the wife (Mrs. Darnold), owned a successful dental clinic. Her husband, Mr. Darnold, also earned a significant income working full-time, outside the home. The couple had 3 children, and most of the child-care was performed by a live-in nanny.

In this situation, it is very possible that Mr. Darnold would not be entitled to a 50% share of his wife’s dental clinic. This is because Mr. Darnold did not make any contributions to the success of his wife’s business. It would be unfair for Mr. Darnold to get half of something he had nothing to do with.

Unequal division of a family business also occurs in the following situation: where one spouse owned the business before the relationship began. In these circumstances, the financial worth of the company is broken down into two different time frames:

1. The business’ value before the marriage, and,
2. The business’ value after the marriage.

The non-business-owning spouse is only entitled to a portion of the after-marriage value of the business. The logic here is that, since the spouse had nothing to do with the business before the marriage, they should not get any share of the pre-marriage value. Conversely, the value of the business post-marriage is a family asset. Here, the spouse likely contributed in some way to the business after the marriage, and thus, they would be entitled to a portion of the business as part of the divorce.

It is important to note that dividing a business between spouses does not always mean the business ends. The company may carry on doing business after the divorce. However, in most cases, part of its value must be paid out to the non-business-owning spouse as part of the divorce process.

From Gardens to Green Spaces: A New Study Explores Nature's Role in Cancer Care

by ACTION Centre, Cumming School of Medicine, University of Calgary

As someone impacted by cancer, you know things researchers don't.

You know what it felt like to sit with a diagnosis, or to sit with a loved one with a diagnosis. You know what helped, and you know what didn't. Whether a walk outside cleared your head when nothing else could. Whether the person caring for you needed support just as much as you did.

That lived knowledge matters. And now, researchers at the University of Calgary want to hear it.

Led by principal investigator Dr. Linda Carlson, the Nature-Connected Oncology Research Exploration, Nature-CORE, is a national study inviting people affected by cancer to share their perspectives on nature-based therapies and their potential role in cancer care. Through an online survey, your experiences could directly shape the programs developed for future patients and caregivers across Canada.

The idea behind the research is straightforward. A growing body of evidence suggests that time spent in natural environments such as parks, gardens, or green spaces may help reduce stress, lift mood, and support overall well-being. Researchers are also exploring possible links between increased nature exposure and improved gut health, which strengthens the immune system. For people navigating cancer, those potential benefits could be game changers.

But researchers can only go so far without hearing from the people who've actually lived it.

The Nature-CORE survey is open to cancer patients, survivors, caregivers, healthcare providers, and policymakers—anyone touched by cancer or healthcare providers involved in cancer care. It asks about the nature-based approaches people may already be using, what barriers make them hard to access, and what kinds of programs would be most useful and realistic.

This is not about replacing medical treatment. It's about exposure to nature as complementary therapy, strengthening recovery from cancer and its effects.

Every voice adds something that data alone can't capture. Whether you spent time outside during treatment and felt the difference, or cared for someone who did, your perspective belongs in this research. Likewise, the perspectives of those who didn't, or couldn't, spend time in nature are equally valuable.

Canadians 18 and older are welcome to participate in our online survey.

What you've been through has value beyond your own story. Share it with us and help build something better for the people who come after you.

Please access our survey here: www.action-centre.ca/ncorestudy.
