Staying in Relationships Thinking the Other Person Will Change, Now What?

by Nancy Bergeron, R.Psych. | info@nancybergeron.ca

In romantic relationships, the hope that someone will change is incredibly common, and very human. Here's the why:

We fall in love with potential, not just reality. Early connection, chemistry, and shared dreams can make us focus on who someone could be rather than who they consistently are.

Love activates optimism and attachment. Attachment bonds naturally create hope. Our nervous system prefers security over loss, so we hold onto the idea that change will come rather than face the pain of disappointment or separation.

We confuse influence with control. Healthy relationships do involve growth and compromise, but that can slide into the belief that love, patience, or suffering will eventually motivate change in areas that are actually character-based or deeply ingrained.

Familiar patterns feel safer than unfamiliar outcomes. Even dissatisfaction can feel safer than the uncertainty of leaving—especially if someone grew up adapting to others or earning love by tolerating discomfort.

Cultural narratives reinforce it. We're taught that love "fixes," that commitment means endurance, and that leaving equals failure rather than discernment.

Acceptance doesn't mean approval. It means clearly seeing who someone is right now, and asking: Can I live peacefully with this if it never changes? If the answer is no, the work isn't to force acceptance—it's to honor that truth. Real intimacy grows when we choose people for who they are, not who we hope they'll become.

Here are practical ways to shift your inner narration and cultivate acceptance of your partner—without abandoning your own needs or values (unless the situation is unsafe or abusive):

1. Separate "preferences" from "deal-breakers"

Narration shift: "I don't like this" to... "This is uncomfortable, but not unsafe or violating."

2. Replace fantasy with reality statements

Narration shift: "They would be perfect if..." to... "This is who they are today, consistently."

3. Translate irritation into meaning

Ask: What does this trigger in me; fear, unmet needs, old wounds?

Narration shift: "They're the problem" to... "This brings up something important in me."

4. Use compassion without justification

Narration shift: "They shouldn't be this way" to... "I can understand why they're this way, without agreeing or excusing."

5. Practice present-tense acceptance language

Use phrases like: "This is what's here right now." or... "I don't have to solve this today."

6. Stop future-bargaining

Narration shift: "Once X happens, then I'll be okay" to... "If nothing changes, how do I feel about this life?"

7. Name your choice clearly

Narration shift: "I'm stuck" to... "I am choosing to stay for now, with eyes open."

Choice restores agency and reduces resentment.

8. Practice grief, not resistance

Acceptance often requires grieving the partner you hoped for.

Narration shift: "This shouldn't hurt" to... "Of course this hurts."

9. Anchor acceptance in boundaries

Narration shift: "I have to accept everything" to... "I accept who they are and I choose how close I stand."

10. Use curiosity over judgment.

Narration shift: "They're wrong" to... "This is different from me—what does that mean for us?"

Youth “Learn to Do by Doing” with 4-H Intro Clubs

The 4-H motto is “learn to do by doing.” That is the idea behind 4-H Intro Clubs for youth aged 9 to 15. These six-week clubs give young people a chance to try new activities, learn practical skills, and explore their interests in a hands-on, low-pressure way. Youth get a taste of what it would be like to be a member of a traditional 4-H Club in these short programs, but the impact can be significant.

Intro Club members also have access to bonus events. Past events like the University of Calgary Vet Science Day and SAIT workshops in cooking and welding have allowed participants to explore careers, skills, and hobbies in a real-world setting. These events give youth experiences they may not get at school or at home.

Many bonus events include exposure to agriculture. Farm tours and projects let youth see where food comes from, learn about animals, and understand the work involved in growing plants or raising livestock. For children in the city, this connection to the local food system and community is especially valuable.

New bonus events are planned, including a microgreens workshop, a farm tour, an equine therapy workshop, and family tours at 4-H on Parade. Once a youth registers in an Intro Club, they can sign up for any available bonus events, most of which are free. These opportunities help children stay curious and learning outside regular club meetings.

Through Intro Clubs and bonus events, youth practice skills, explore interests, and gain experiences that help them make informed choices about hobbies, school projects, and future goals. At the same time, they connect with their community and learn about the role of agriculture in everyday life.

Try This at Home: Track Your Food

Pick one food item in your home and trace how it gets from farm to table. Who grows it? How is it processed or packaged? Why is it important to your community? This simple activity helps youth understand where food comes from and connects them to the local food system.

Learn more about Intro Clubs and bonus events at 4hab.com/member-programs/ or email introclubs@4hab.com.

News from the Friends of Nose Hill

by Anne Burke

The Calgary area has been the subject of many geological studies in scientific papers, field guides, and monographs, including glacial mapping of Nose Hill. The top of Nose Hill contains gravel deposited by the ancient Bow River, also carrying sand and mud, flowing east out of the mountains and reaching the level of the present hilltop. There may have been as many as 20 major glacial advances and retreats in what is now the Calgary area.

During the last one to two million years of earth history, ice sheets shaped the landscape. The continuous plain to the north, and on the east and west flanks of Nose Hill, were shaped by glacial meltwater from nearby ice. As the modern Bow River developed, it created a broad valley and the southern flanks of the Hill. A large lake was produced by an ice dam on the River. On its North and East, Nose Hill is bounded by Beddington and Nose Creeks. To the west, Big Hill Springs Coulee is what remains of the earlier glacial spillway system.

Nose Hill provides spectacular views from which to interpret the geological history of the Bow River Valley and its tributaries, as well as the uplands across the valley to the south. The boundary between eastern and western ice sheets is the result of a landslide from Mt. Edith Cavell. As the valley glacier advanced it was deflected southward by eastern ice and glacial erratics (large boulders) mark its former path.
