New Brighton Tool Shed is Taking Off

We are glad that more and more people know and use the Tool Shed in our community. When there's a conversation on a Facebook page about someone who's lawnmower is broken and they are looking to hire some kid to cut their grass and another person is talking about the Tool Shed where you can borrow a lawnmower at no cost that means people know about it.

And we know for a fact that once you have used the Tool Shed, this will be the first place you look if you need some tools that you don't have around the house. So thank you all for promoting this awesome project because keeping it alive is based on the amount of use we get from those tools and if there's no demand, there is no reason to keep it going.

It would be nice to hear how your experience was with the Tool Shed and how you heard about it. You can send your message to contact@ournewbrighton.ca and thanks for reading.

NBCA Board Wishes You an Awesome Summer

We have a good team, more and more people know about us, and we hope September will bring new members onto our Board – residents like you who want to make more happen for the community.

Can we solve all the problems of the world? (Read “the community”) Of course not, but every single thing that we solve and every single idea to better our community goes a long way. And every brilliant idea needs to be backed up by someone volunteering the time to make sure that idea comes to fruition.

We get all kinds of inquiries coming our way and we gladly help whenever we have more info on hand. A lot of inquiries are redirected to other offices/ organizations and sometimes we even meet the concerned resident just to get further details and decide if our knowledge as Board members can solve the problem.

You get the idea, sometimes we can help, sometimes not, but at some point, you should ask yourself if you can help yourself and others by joining our Board and learning more about the elected offices and the city. Don't be shy, give us a try.

Fun Things to do in New Brighton in the Summer!

Article provided by our student correspondent, Nicholas N.

If you're sitting bored at home, this is for you! We have many walking and biking pathways to explore in our community. They connect us to all the ponds in and around New Brighton. These paths also connect us to our wetlands. You can go all the way to Ralph Klein Park or Fish Creek Park on your bike from New Brighton! All these paths have breathtaking views and lots of wildlife diversity. One pond here has the only purple martin bird colony in Calgary.

Our community also has baseball diamonds, basketball courts, soccer fields, volleyball courts, playgrounds, and ponds. If you are ever looking for a fun way to cool off, have no fear because our community also features a brand-new splash park!

Another great place to have fun with your friends in the afternoon is the athletic park, it has many fields for playing football and soccer and has a playground close by for those with little ones. Another place to visit is right beside the athletic park, our very own skate park for skateboards, long boards, scooters, and even bikes! New Brighton is an awesome community with many things to do, so get on out there and start exploring all the many things New Brighton has to offer!

How to Get the Most Out of Your Counselling/Therapy Sessions

by Nancy Bergeron, R.Psych. | nancy@viewpointcalgary.ca

Adapted from Dr. David Burns

We understand that therapy can sometimes be challenging

People often report that unburdening their emotions and past experiences in the first few sessions is relieving. However, therapy often uncovers deeper issues. Opening up and getting to the heart of these concerns takes patience, persistent effort, and fostering a positive relationship with your counsellor. It takes time to build a strong therapeutic bond and rapport, and this is essential in creating the trust necessary to go to those deeper places where real change takes place.

Consistency will help you reach your goals

If you wanted to improve your fitness and saw your physical trainer once every three months, you probably wouldn't be surprised when you didn't see the results you wanted. Similarly, therapy needs commitment and consistency to work through your concerns and be effective. Of course, your counsellor understands there are many demands on your time and resources. By collaborating with your counsellor, you can create a reasonable plan that balances your commitment to your wellbeing with all your other commitments. This is also why sometimes your therapist may assign you homework or other types of activities to practice between sessions.

Providing feedback will help your counsellor know what is/isn't working for you

Counsellors strive to build positive, non-judgmental, and compassionate therapeutic relationships, understanding this is beneficial for you and the therapeutic process. Despite this emotional and professional commitment, challenges in therapy can sometimes break down open communication and hinder the process. Providing feedback allows your counsellor to understand what has happened and work to repair any concerns you may have. A great therapist will provide a feedback form that can be filled out at the end of each session. Here you can let your therapist know what you liked best in the session, what you liked the least, and if there were things you had hoped to discuss that may have been missed. This allows your therapist to constantly adjust and better hone their skills to your needs.

Mutually agreeing to end therapy when you are ready

When you and your counsellor recognize you are ready to move on, it can be exciting for both of you. In order to ensure you finish on a positive note, your counsellor will help you plan how to maintain your progress and what to do if you encounter concerns again. You have a fresh start, and your counsellor will be there in the future if needed.

Sometimes clients end therapy without talking with their counsellor, leaving their counsellor to wonder what happened. Not only can this make it more difficult for clients to maintain progress, but they may also feel they have lost a potential future support. If the counsellor can't reach the client, it also leaves the counsellor wondering what happened. Did my client feel enough progress had already been made? Did something go wrong? Did I say or do something that upset my client? Counsellors invest emotionally and professionally in the therapeutic relationship and appreciate feedback that lets them know what is happening. Your counsellor will always strive to treat you and your decisions with compassion and respect. In return, you can help your counsellor by communicating any concerns and showing that you understand they deserve compassion and respect too.
