Stay Healthy, Stay Safe, and Stay Connected

You want to learn more about your community? What issues New Brighton is facing? How about joining our Board and extend your knowledge about how things happen. We cannot do this without community support. We, as a Board of Directors, are as strong as all the individual members put together. You can connect with people and public offices by representing the community, by being more than just an individual. This is a place where you can make a difference for more than just your family—you can grow an event and see the community benefiting from it. You can check some of our past projects and you can read more details about the Board on our website, Facebook page, and now our Instagram page.

Tool Shed for All Seasons

We hope this autumn you will take full advantage of the tools available in the Community Tool Shed. We are continuously trying to expand the tool inventory based on the demands from the community. Check our "Tool Shed" page on ournewbrighton.ca and click on the inventory link to see the wide array of tools you can use free of charge.

We have a lot of new neighbours in the community and some of them may need tools for different projects. If your new neighbour asks you about the best places to buy tools or wants to borrow something from you, you can tell them we have a Tool Shed they can use free of charge. The Tool Shed can give you peace of mind until you find the best deal—just borrow the lawnmower from the Tool Shed anytime you want to cut your grass. There are tools for all seasons and all kind of projects.

Thanks everyone for taking pride in your house and your lawn appearance, and for making our community brighter.

Support Victoria Fortuna and Her Family After a Tragic Highway Accident

In the early evening of February 8, 2026, the Fortuna family's life was forever altered by a devastating and senseless accident.

Victoria (21) and her father, Paul (53), were the innocent victims of a tragic vehicle accident that occurred in Edmonton. Sadly, her father succumbed to his injuries at the scene, and Victoria has been left with life-threatening and life-altering injuries. She is currently fighting for her life and receiving critical medical care at the University Hospital in Edmonton.

Thankfulness in the Everyday

by Rebecca Pink

October invites us to think about gratitude and all the things that we are grateful for. It can be meaningful to pause and reflect on the moments that stay with us, and become a part of us. So often, they aren't the big, planned out moments, or the stuff you have accumulated over time. Have you ever noticed that some of the moments you're most grateful for, are often the simplest, most spontaneous, or most genuine ones?

Sometimes, what stays with us is the feeling of an experience more than the experience itself. The laughter, the unexpected conversation, a great meal together, and in my house, the beautiful messiness of everyday life. These are the memories that stay with us, not because they were perfect, but because they were lived. They become the treasures that never gather dust, quietly weaving themselves into our stories.

The challenge is that when we're busy, overwhelmed, or anxious, our attention can so easily move toward what's next. We anticipate, plan, problem-solve, and manage, sometimes leaving less room to notice what is happening right in front of us. We can spend so much time anticipating the future, or reliving the past, that we can miss what is happening right in front of us. There is nothing unusual about this; our minds are simply trying to keep up with the demands of life.

Being present doesn't always come naturally; it takes intention. Sometimes it is as simple as putting down the phone, taking a deep breath, looking around, and allowing ourselves to actually take in what is happening. This may be part of the experience of thankfulness, too. Not simply identifying what we appreciate but being present enough to experience it.

As thanksgiving approaches, maybe we don't need to search for something extraordinary to be grateful for. Maybe we simply need to slow down enough to notice what is already here.

An ordinary moment can become a lasting memory, one that still makes you smile years later and brings you back to the people and the experiences that matter most. Looking back, those are often the moments I feel most thankful for. Happy Thanksgiving and Happy Spooky Season!

October's Reflection

by Michelle Macdonald, Letter Writing and Mail Club Enthusiast.

Write about a goal you achieved. What did you learn on the road toward the destination?

Dear reader,

I've learned that achieving a small goal can sometimes be a big deal. I'm the type of person who likes to set attainable goals. This way, after proving what I am capable of, I feel more motivated because it reminds me of my ability to grow. Achieving the first goal motivates me toward a new, more challenging goal. It makes me think, "Hey, since I hit that goal, why not go a bit further?"

My health and fitness journey has followed this path.

If you had asked me ten years ago if I'd be as committed to my fitness as I am now, I would not have believed it. Ten years ago, I had a five-year-old and a three-year-old. In other words, I was in the throes of parental exhaustion with no desire, time, or energy to commit to new fitness habits.

Once my kids were a more manageable age, life settled down, and I had both the desire and breathing room to work toward a fitness goal. I started small: two days a week of lifting weights at home. My goal at the beginning was to show up; not to lose weight, not to get jacked, it was simply to form the habit. This was motivating for me because I learned that I could feel a sense of accomplishment just from checking a box.

What happened next was quite interesting. After a while, I liked it and slowly built my routine to exercise three days a week, then four, and so on. Not only did I begin to look forward to working out, but I also felt more energetic, slept better, and had more self-confidence. I realized the previous bias I held that exercise was a chore was incorrect. I came to realize that it is a wonderful treat I need to feel whole.

This experience taught me to be open to new challenges and reinforced the importance of noticing how I perceive them. Sometimes my negativity or fear isn't justified, and it holds me back. I also learned that when I start small and build on goals, it helps lock them in on autopilot.

Your turn! Write in your journal or to your pen pal about a goal you achieved and what you learned.

Happy writing,

Michelle
