MOON FESTIVAL

The Moon Festival, or Mid-Autumn Festival, takes place on September 25 this year. This is the second most celebrated Chinese holiday bringing good fortune and prosperity. Often celebrated by eating moon cakes, lighting lanterns and gathering for large family meals, the celebration dates back over 3,000 years and has variations that are celebrated all over East and Southeast Asia.

When Grief Becomes Complicated: Strategies for Dealing with Complex Grief

by Nancy Bergeron, R.Psych | info@nancybergeron.ca

Grief is a natural response to loss, but it does not follow a fixed timeline. For many of us, the pain slowly softens and life begins to open up again. For others, grief stays intense, persistent, and disruptive long after the loss. This is often called complex grief.

Complex grief is more than missing someone. It can feel as if time has stopped. Months or even years after the loss, we may still feel as though the death happened yesterday. You may struggle with intense longing, difficulty accepting the loss, or trouble imagining a meaningful future without the person who died. Everyday reminders can bring overwhelming pain, making it hard to work, maintain relationships, or enjoy activities you once valued.

Complex grief can sometimes be mistaken for depression because both can involve sadness and withdrawal. The difference is that grief is centred on the loss of a specific person and the longing for that relationship. Depression usually involves a broader loss of pleasure, ongoing hopelessness, and negative beliefs about oneself. It is also possible to experience both at the same time.

Six Coping Strategies for Complex Grief:

While complex grief can feel overwhelming, there are approaches that can help. Evidence-based treatment often includes grief-focused therapy, which offers a safe space to process the loss, explore painful emotions, and gradually rebuild meaning and connection. Some people also benefit from cognitive behavioural strategies, which can help identify unhelpful thoughts such as guilt, self-blame, or the belief that life can never feel meaningful again.

Other helpful coping strategies include:

- Maintaining routines: Create a simple daily structure that adds predictability, even in small ways. For example, wake up at the same time each morning, eat breakfast before checking your phone, or take a short walk after lunch.
- Allowing space for grief: Set aside time to feel, remember, or express your grief instead of holding it in all day. You might journal before bed, light a candle on a certain day, or look through photos and write down a memory.
- Staying connected to supportive people: Reach out to people who can listen without trying to fix your feelings. You might text a trusted friend, attend a grief support group, or invite a family member for coffee.
- Caring for your body: Focus on one or two basic physical needs each day, since grief can make self-care harder. You might drink a glass of water when you wake up, eat something with protein at breakfast, stretch for five minutes, or go to bed at a consistent time.
- Practicing self-compassion: Notice harsh self-talk and replace it with a more understanding response. If you think, "I should be over this by now," try reminding yourself, "I am grieving something important, and healing takes time."

These strategies do not erase grief, but they can make it more manageable and support healing over time.

When to Seek Professional Help

It may be time to seek professional support if your grief feels stuck or overwhelming for a long period, especially if it is affecting work, relationships, sleep, or daily functioning. You may also benefit from help if you are avoiding reminders of the loss, struggling to imagine a future, or experiencing intense guilt, numbness, or hopelessness that does not ease with time.

Back to School Safety

by Alberta Health Services

Alberta Health Services EMS would like to remind parents and students of some basic safety tips as the school year begins again this fall. Pedestrians and motorists both have an important role to play—road safety is a shared responsibility.

Motorists

- Distracted driving carries a $300 fine and three demerit points in Alberta. Avoid the use of mobile devices or engaging in any other behavior that diverts your attention away from driving.
- Give right-of-way to pedestrians who have activated overhead crossing lights, or who are waiting to cross from a street corner.
- Other than parked cars, it is illegal to pass another vehicle in a school or playground zone during posted hours.

Around School Buses

- Flashing amber lights mean a bus is slowing down to stop—motorists should do likewise.
- No matter which direction you are coming from, stop when approaching a school bus with activated flashing red lights—unless the bus is on the opposite side of a divided highway from you.

- Driver courtesy goes a long way. By simply being alert and cautious when approaching a school bus, you are contributing to school bus safety.

Pedestrians

- Cross only at marked crosswalks, or street corners that have clear visibility from all directions.
- Make eye contact with all drivers before crossing the street and keep distractions to a minimum.
- When activating overhead crossing lights, pause before stepping off the curb to ensure motorists in both directions have come to a complete stop.
- Stay within the crosswalk lines.
- Obey pedestrian lights at intersections. Cross the street only when you see the 'walk' sign and only when all cars have come to a complete stop.
- If you are with young children or pets, hold your child's hand firmly and keep a solid grip on leashes when crossing.
- Remember: Children learn by observing. By demonstrating safe crossing habits, you can reduce the chances of your child being involved in a preventable auto/pedestrian collision.

The American Mink—Neogale vison

by Kristina Quapp

The American Mink is a small, amphibious weasel that inhabits wetlands throughout Canada. Weasel refers to slender, small, carnivorous mammals belonging to the family Mustelidae. While the American Mink is most abundant along the coastline of British Columbia, you may have spotted them around Calgary as well!

Minks appear in varying shades of brown and black, often with patches of white on their chest and abdomen. Like beavers, minks have two layers of fur; a dense, insulating underfur that keeps them warm, and an outer layer of fur covered in an oily sheen that prevents water from soaking through to their skin. Unlike other varieties of weasel, the American minks' coat does not turn white in the winter. While their coat grows thicker in the colder months, it remains a dark shade to help them blend into the vegetation along streams, ponds, and riverbanks. Given their habitat, the minks' paws are partially webbed, allowing them to remain dexterous on land and in the water. Minks' can range in size from 1 to 1.8 kg in weight, and roughly 60 cm in length.

During the summer months, the mink's diet shifts to take advantage of warm-weather prey. This often includes crayfish, frogs, fish, and ducks. As the weather cools down, the minks' diet relies heavily on small land mammals including voles, mice, muskrats, and rabbits. Since the mink often resides in the water, thick brush, or on rocky river edges, it has few natural enemies. On occasion, minks will be preyed upon by coyotes, bobcats, large snakes, and birds of prey.

While predators aren't considered major threats to the mink, human activity, habitat loss, and environmental contaminants can affect the population. The minks' unique and luxurious fur remains in high demand in the fur trade. 47 American states and all Canadian provinces currently conduct limited trapping seasons on the mink, with the length of the season varying from place to place. The minks' habitat also plays a crucial role in their conservation. They rely heavily on streams, wetlands, and shores with dense vegetation to provide safe burrows, and prey to feed upon. The expansion of infrastructure development and pesticide application can impact their reproductive success and long-term health.

Mindful Mink Spotting

To see an American mink for yourself, head to densely vegetated waterways and riverbanks, particularly along the Bow River, the Elbow River, and local wetland ponds. Prime spots include the McKenzie Meadows area, Fish Creek Provincial Park, Lafarge Meadows, Inglewood Bird Sanctuary, Carburn Park, Weaselhead Flats, and Lafarge Meadows. Keep an eye on the water's edge, rocky shores, and amongst the brush. Keep in mind these key points while looking for our furry amphibious friends:

- Maintain distance: Use binoculars or a phone lens instead of approaching.
- Keep waterways clean: Pack out all trash, including food scraps.
- Stay on marked trails: Avoid trampling riverbank vegetation. Walking off trail can degrade the shoreline and damage hidden dens.
- Never feed wildlife: Feeding minks can disrupt their natural diet and may teach them to associate humans with food.

Broken Hearts and Broken Investment Portfolios

by Christopher Bungay, Divorce Lawyer

Divorce does not just break your heart. It also breaks up your investment portfolio. According to Alberta law, investments that were acquired during a marriage are defined as family-owned property. This means that, after most divorces in Alberta, each spouse is entitled to 50% of any investments that were purchased during the marriage. There are two important points to remember about this 50/50 splitting rule:

- It applies regardless of which spouse purchased the investments.
- It applies to the initial investment purchase, plus any growth in the investment that occurred during the marriage.

The following scenario of a fictional couple demonstrates how this works: The Johnsons were married in 1990. They did not live together until after the marriage started. Unfortunately, things did not work out, and they separated in May 2026. Shortly after their 1990 wedding, Mr. Johnson bought $100,000 in shares in the popular fast food chain McDonald's. These shares were bought in his own personal name. His wife, Mrs. Johnson, was not listed as a shareholder. On the date when this couple separated, the McDonald's shares grew in value from $100,000 to $4 million dollars. In this scenario, as part of their divorce, Mrs. Johnson would be entitled to 50% ($2 million) of the total $4 million in McDonald's shares.

50/50 Applies to RRSP Investments

Even if Mr. Johnson had purchased the McDonald's shares within an RRSP, his wife would still be entitled to 50% of the value. While RRSPs protect your investments from being taxed while they grow over the years, RRSPs do not protect you from the consequences of divorce. If the $4 million in McDonald's shares were held in Mr. Johnson's RRSP, he would likely be required to transfer $2 million of these shares into Mrs. Johnson's RRSP account as part of the divorce proceedings.

50/50 Does Not Apply to Investments Before Marriage

The 50-50 split rule does not apply to investments made by one spouse before the relationship began. For example, let's say Mr. Johnson bought $100,000 in McDonald's shares in 1989, the year before he married Mrs. Johnson. In this scenario, the original $100,000 investment would belong exclusively to Mr. Johnson alone after the couple separated/divorced. However, Mrs. Johnson would still be permitted to share in any growth in value of the McDonald's shares which occurred after the day they were married. In other words, of the total $4 million, Mr. Johnson would get $4.1 million and Mrs. Johnson would get $3.9 million to account for the initial $100,000 investment made by Mr. Johnson before their marriage, which belongs exclusively to Mr. Johnson.

Alberta Separation Referendum

As Albertans prepare to vote in the upcoming referendum on Alberta's future within Canada, I believe it is important to clearly state my position: I support Alberta remaining in Canada.

Like many Albertans, I recognize the legitimate frustrations that have fuelled support for separation. Concerns about equalization, unfair representation in Parliament, excessive federal regulation, and a perceived lack of respect for Alberta are real and deserve attention. Alberta has contributed significantly to Canada's prosperity and Albertans rightly expect acknowledgement and fair treatment in return.

However, I do not believe separation is the solution.

As a landlocked province, Alberta relies on access through other jurisdictions to reach global markets. Independence would not automatically solve challenges around pipelines and tidewater access. Instead, Alberta would need to negotiate with Canada as a separate country, likely weakening our position and creating new barriers for trade and energy exports.

Claims that separation would dramatically reduce taxes are also uncertain. While federal taxes would no longer be paid to Ottawa, Alberta would assume major new responsibilities, including national defence, border security, tax collection and foreign relations. These costs, combined with the loss of economies of scale, could offset many anticipated savings.

There is also significant uncertainty regarding Alberta's future relationship with the United States and the broader international community. Such risks should not be dismissed lightly.

Importantly, Alberta already enjoys substantial autonomy within Confederation. Successive provincial governments have demonstrated the ability to challenge federal policies and defend Alberta's interests while remaining part of Canada.

Canada is not perfect, but it remains one of the most stable, prosperous, and respected countries in the world. Rather than abandoning Confederation, we should continue working to address Alberta's legitimate concerns and build a stronger future together. I firmly believe Alberta's best days remain ahead, as part of Canada.
