A FRESH PERSPECTIVE

Remembering and Reconnecting

by Rebecca Pink

November gives us a moment to pause and honour, with deep gratitude, those who served and sacrificed for others, and those who continue to serve today. It is also a reminder that remembering is something we all carry in different ways. Remembrance is not limited to one day or one kind of loss, it can take many shapes, often quietly woven into our everyday lives. Sometimes remembering brings comfort; other times, it brings sadness, longing, or emotions we weren't expecting. There is no right way to remember or feel. We can continue to try to make room for whatever comes, with a little gentleness and self-compassion,

Grief is something that many people carry quietly. I know this from my own experience as well. It can be complicated, heavy, and unpredictable, bringing waves of emotions that can shift from one day to the next. We don't always talk about it, and sometimes we may feel as though we are expected to "move on" or "be fine". However, grief doesn't follow a timeline and is never linear. We can make room for both the sadness of what is no longer here and the gratitude for once was.

November can be a challenging month for many of us. The days grow shorter, the temperatures drop, and for many of us, our energy shifts with the season. Rather than seeing this as something we need to push through, maybe it can be an invitation to slow down and check in with ourselves. What might you need a little more of right now? Rest? Connection? Time for yourself and your loved ones?

November gives us an opportunity to pause, remember, and reconnect. We might reach out to someone we haven't spoken to in a while, revisit a memory, or make a little more room for the people and experiences that matter to us. For those carrying grief, these moments of connection can be especially meaningful. Sometimes remembering together is a way of reminding ourselves that we don't have to carry it alone.

As we move through November, I also want to take a moment to remember and honour those who have served and continue to serve, and the families who stand alongside them.

Lest We Forget.

Oh MY Oakridge
Upgrading Community Greenspaces

Help Shape the Future of Oakridge's Parks and Greenspaces!

Thank you to everyone who participated in the Oakridge Greenspace Master Plan survey!

We received more than 300 responses from residents across the community, sharing how they currently use Oakridge's parks, pathways, and open spaces, along with ideas for improvements and priorities for the future.

Since the survey closed, TULA, our landscape architecture partner, has been reviewing the survey results alongside observations gathered by community volunteers about how our parks and open spaces are used today. This information will help create a long-term vision for Oakridge's greenspaces, one that reflects the needs and aspirations of the community.

Join Us at an Upcoming Workshop

The next phase of the project is all about turning community feedback into possibilities.

During the interactive sessions, TULA will share key findings from the survey and discuss the priorities that emerged from community feedback. Participants will then help explore and evaluate potential improvements for Oakridge's parks and open spaces.

Together, we'll:

- Review what we heard through the community survey.
- Explore ideas for park amenities, recreation opportunities, natural areas, gathering spaces, pathways, and other improvements.
- Discuss how different ideas could serve residents throughout the year.
- Identify and rank the park features and improvements that matter most to the community.

The outcome of the workshops will be a community-informed list of priorities that will help guide the next stage of the Greenspace Master Plan. To Register for An Upcoming Workshop Please Visit www.oakridgecommunity.ca.

Calling All Youth!

We also want to hear directly from younger residents.

Young people often experience parks differently than adults, and some of the most creative ideas come from youth themselves. This session will be hands-on, interactive, and fun. Rather than a traditional meeting, participants will take part in activities that encourage drawing, building, imagining, and co-designing future park spaces. These approaches help youth share their ideas in ways that are engaging, accessible, and meaningful.

Whether it's dreaming up the ultimate playground, identifying places to gather with friends, or imagining new recreation opportunities, youth participants will have a direct opportunity to help shape Oakridge's future greenspaces.

Upcoming Community Engagement Workshops

- November 15, 1:00pm to 3:00pm - All ages welcome in the Oakridge Community Centre
- November 22, 1:00pm to 3:00pm - Youth Engagement Workshops for ages 7 to 18 years in the Oakridge Community Centre

To Register for An Upcoming Workshop Please Visit www.oakridgecommunity.ca.

Stay Involved

These workshops are an important step in creating a Greenspace Master Plan that reflects the needs of the entire community. Whether you've lived in Oakridge for decades or just recently moved here, we'd love to hear your ideas. Follow us on social or visit www.oakridgecommunity.ca for project updates, workshop registration, and future engagement opportunities.

A Flower to Remember

Red poppy seeds can remain dormant in the soil for years. During the First World War, artillery and trench warfare disturbed the earth along the Western Front, allowing poppies to bloom across the landscape. The sight inspired Canadian Lieutenant-Colonel John McCrae's 1915 poem "In Flanders Fields", helping the red poppy become an enduring symbol of remembrance.

Oakridge Sage Gatherings

Where Caring and Wisdom Meet Community.

We have had a wonderful transition to fall, the colours are beautiful and outdoor activities have not had to be put on hold for weather! There is lots happening around our neighbourhood, we love to be out and about in Oakridge and are so lucky to have great parks and pathways connecting our community. Keep watching for news, bulletins, emails, and opportunities to engage and share your ideas with Oh My Oakridge as they develop further plans for increased green space activation.

We have the most wonderful and fully engaged group of seniors in Oakridge. We are constantly working on plans to bring in new members and continue to look at engagement ideas for the community. If you have had any thoughts on how we could create more concepts, please reach out as we are always looking for ways to get creative.

We continue with our Coffee Meetups on Tuesdays, and our presentations occur once a month. October we were so fortunate to be able to welcome Duane Bratt, PhD Professor, Department of Economics, Justice and Policy Studies at Mount Royal University. Dr. Bratt shared great insight on understanding the Alberta Referendum: its origins, process and analysis.

We are always looking for speakers and topics, if there is something you are interested in hearing or learning more about, please reach out with your ideas to Bruce Sutherland at; oakridgesagegatherings@gmail.com.

Upcoming Presentations on the Second Floor of OCC

- November 10, 11:00 am: LCOL Ret'd Bruce Sutherland—Flying Fixed Wing Aircraft off of Canada's Aircraft Carrier—Canadian Top Gun Pilots.

*We do suggest registering for these events as seating is limited; rsvp@sagegatherings.ca.

Please note: All speaker series presentations are by a donation of your choice and mostly held on the second floor of the Oakridge Community Centre. Please read the ECHO and watch for posters on the Bulletin Board at the entrance for information.

Social Committee

The Social Committee helps build community spirit in Oakridge by creating fun, welcoming ways for neighbours to connect. Whether you've lived here for decades or you're brand new to the community, social events are often the easiest way to meet people, feel included, and build a stronger sense of belonging.

What Does the Social Committee Do?

The Social Committee plans and delivers community events that bring neighbours together across all ages and stages. Signature events have included Skate with Santa, OAKtoberfest, and Jellybean Dances—and the committee is always looking for ways to keep these experiences positive, inclusive, and easy to participate in.

Beyond the events themselves, the Social Committee focuses on creating a welcoming atmosphere. That means thinking about accessibility, clear communication, and the small details that help people feel comfortable showing up—especially families, seniors, and residents attending for the first time.

A big part of making events successful is volunteer coordination. The Social Committee helps organize short-term, event-based volunteer roles such as set-up, take-down, welcome table support, activity stations, and general "extra hands" during busy moments. These roles are a great way to contribute without needing a long-term commitment and they make a real difference in what we can offer as a community.

The committee also works with other committees, staff, and community partners to support seasonal programming and special events. When committees collaborate, we can share resources, avoid duplication, and create a more connected calendar of activities for residents.

Finally, the Social Committee promotes upcoming events and shares key details, so residents know what's happening, what to expect, and how to participate.

Current Priorities

This quarter, the Social Committee is focused on confirming the seasonal events calendar and recruiting volunteer leads for key events, improving event planning and delivery (timelines, volunteer sign-ups, supply lists, and day-of coordination), increasing participation by making events easy to understand and accessible (clear info, low-cost or free options, family-friendly timing), and gathering resident feedback after events to improve future programming.

How to Get Involved

Submit a question, idea, issue, or volunteer interest using our contact us form. If you have an event idea, want to help at an upcoming activity, or can volunteer in a specific way, we'd love to hear from you.

HERITAGE CALGARY

The Battalion Numbers: Calgary's Stone Memorials to the First World War

In November we take time to honor the military members who have served and sacrificed in the line of duty.

If you have driven on thoroughfares near Signal Hill you have probably spotted the Battalion Numbers, a designated historic site overlooking Richmond Road. The Battalion Numbers are a series of white-painted fieldstones arranged in the formation of the numbers 113, 51, 151 and 137.

World War I had a profound social and cultural impact on Calgary. The Battalion Numbers are associated with the training of more than 45,000 Canadian Expeditionary Force personnel at Sarcee Camp, established when the Canadian militia leased a nearby parcel of land from the Tsuu T'ina Nation.

To mark the training, battalion numbers were written on the nearby hillside with whitewashed stone, representing Edmonton's 51st Infantry Battalion, Lethbridge's 113th Highlanders, Calgary's 137th Infantry Battalion, and the 151st from Central Alberta.

The painted rocks belonged to a British military custom of creating rock art to commemorate regimental units, often set up by the regiments themselves in a form of spirited competition. In a more unique local expression of this custom, battalions also laid out their unit numbers in massive stone formations along the ridges north and west of the camp before they embarked for service overseas.

The outlines were first plotted out by military engineers, then filled in by fatigue parties who gathered thousands of fieldstones from the surrounding area and laboriously placed them into the hillside.

These are the only stone monuments of their type known to remain in Alberta. Over the past century, various military and paramilitary organizations in Calgary have continued the tradition of whitewashing or painting the numbers as an act of remembrance.
