Support Victoria Fortuna and Her Family After a Tragic Highway Accident

In the early evening of February 8, 2026, the Fortuna family's life was forever altered by a devastating and senseless accident.

Victoria, a 21-year-old student at MacEwan University, and her father, Paul Fortuna, 53 years old, were the innocent victims of a horrific and tragic vehicle accident that occurred in Edmonton, Alberta. Sadly, her father, Paul, succumbed to his injuries at the scene, and Victoria has been left with catastrophic, life-threatening, and life-altering injuries. She is currently fighting for her life and receiving critical medical care at the University Hospital in Edmonton.

This GoFundMe, created in partnership with her family, is being established to help ease the inconceivable financial hardship they are facing.

The initial $100,000 fundraising target will help cover immediate expenses, including lodging in Edmonton for Victoria's mother, Colleen (Cousens) Fortuna, and 16-year-old sister, Ariana, both from Calgary. This will also allow Colleen to take necessary time away from work during this period of immense hardship and profound change to focus on Victoria's medical journey and to help her daughters through the unimaginable grief of the sudden, tragic loss of their father.

In the days, months, and years ahead, Victoria will require additional surgeries, extensive rehabilitation, specialized leg prosthetics, intensive mental health support, and enduring general medical care. The financial impact will be significant and ongoing, with future fundraising goals evolving as a result of these needs.

The family is deeply grateful for the kindness, prayers, and support they have already received. Your generosity, through a donation or by sharing this GoFundMe, will allow them to focus on supporting their beloved Victoria through her long recovery journey. It takes a village and every donation counts.

Thank you for standing with them during this unimaginably difficult time.

Accidental Poisoning

by Emergency Health Services

Emergency Health Services (EHS) paramedics would like to remind parents and caregivers of precautions they can take to help prevent accidental childhood poisonings around the home. Ingesting prescription or over-the-counter medication is a frequent cause of accidental childhood poisonings. Other causes include ingesting or contact with household items such as dishwasher/laundry tablets, mouthwash, chemicals such as paints/solvents, cleaning products, and button batteries.

Storage

- Place all medications in locked containers and store in an area inaccessible to children.
- For easy identification, store all medications in their original packaging; do not mix multiple medications in a single bottle.
- Install child locks on all cabinets, or drawers where medications and button batteries are kept.

Safety tips

- Child-resistant medication bottles are not necessarily child-proof. They can still be opened by a child.

- Take extra precautions with medicines designed to appeal to children such as chewable vitamins or flavoured cough and cold syrups.
- Promptly dispose of any medications or toxic household products no longer in use.

Prevention

- Store household products, cleaning supplies, and cosmetics in locked cabinets or drawers.
- Install child latches on cabinets children might also access by climbing on counters or chairs.
- Label all plants in and around your home and garden.
- Antifreeze, windshield washer fluid, and pesticides are extremely poisonous. Even a small amount can cause serious illness if ingested.

Find poisoning information by calling the Poison and Drug Information Service (PADIS) at 1-800-332-1414.

In Case of a Poisoning Emergency, Call 9-1-1

Provide the name of the product ingested and, if it is safe to do so, a sample of the substance for EHS paramedics to inspect on their arrival.

August's Reflection

by Michelle Macdonald, Letter Writing and Mail Club Enthusiast.

List your favourite hobbies. Pick one that gives you great fulfillment. Why is it so special to you?

Dear reader,

It has taken me some time to figure out who I am and which pastimes I need to feel truly content. My favourite hobbies are reading, gardening, camping, hiking, and jigsaw puzzles. To properly nourish our whole selves, I surmise we each need a combination of hobbies that embody various aspects of our lives. For example, we need something active to move our bodies, something to challenge and sharpen our minds, something social to connect us to others, and something peaceful to help us relax.

Gardening is particularly special to me, fulfilling both my active and relaxation needs. I have had a deep affinity for the outdoors and growing things since childhood, heavily influenced by my parents. My dad always tended to the vegetable garden, while my mom creatively landscaped their farm in Southern Ontario.

Working with the earth is a natural lesson in hard work and reward. One morning this spring, I was roaming the backyard with my hot cup of tea, impatiently wondering when my peas would finally begin to sprout. When I noticed a flash of green, I was elated. A single pea shoot was poking proudly out of the soil, and my heart was happy.

However, gardening also requires realistic expectations and acceptance of things entirely outside of our control. Since those peas sprouted, I've had to battle hungry birds and mischievous squirrels. Losing plants to hail, insects, and other pests is simply part of the deal.

Gardening in a climate with a short growing season requires flexibility. It forces me to accept that hours of hard work could be thwarted on any given day by Mother Nature. Honestly, if I hadn't learned to accept that reality, I likely would have quit by now! Yet, despite the frequent challenges, it remains deeply rewarding. Soon enough, I will be eating fresh peas, lettuce, herbs, raspberries, and other delicious food that I managed to nurture, protect, and keep alive.

Happy writing,

Michelle

Dating Safely: Recognizing the Red Flags of an Unsafe Relationship

by Nancy Bergeron, R.Psych. | info@nancybergeron.ca

Dating can be exciting. However, it's a time when we overlook warning signs because our attraction leads us to want to believe the best about someone. According to security expert and author Gavin de Becker in his bestselling book The Gift of Fear, our intuition is one of our greatest tools for recognizing danger. Learning to trust our instincts and identify red flags can help us avoid unhealthy or unsafe relationships before they become deeply established.

One of de Becker's central messages is that fear is not something to dismiss. It is valuable information. Many people who later experienced emotional abuse, coercion, or violence report that they had an uneasy feeling early on but talked themselves out of it. Rather than ignoring these feelings, de Becker encourages us to pay attention to them.

A common red flag is boundary violations. Healthy people respect your "no," your need for space, and your personal preferences. An unsafe person may repeatedly push your boundaries while disguising their persistence as affection or determination. One of de Becker's most important observations is that when someone ignores a small "no," they are often testing whether they can ignore a larger one later.

Another warning sign is forced teaming. This occurs when someone creates an artificial sense of connection by speaking as though you are already a team. Statements such as "We're exactly alike," "No one understands me like you do," or "We're in this together" early in a relationship may be attempts to accelerate trust and intimacy before it has naturally developed.

Becker also describes the danger of love bombing, where a person overwhelms you with attention, gifts, praise, or declarations of love very early in dating. While genuine affection develops gradually, love bombing often creates pressure to reciprocate feelings that have not had time to develop authentically.

Another tactic he identifies is charm versus genuineness. Genuine people do not need to work hard to convince you they are good people. Excessive charm, flattery, and polished behaviour can sometimes be used to lower your guard. As de Becker notes, charm is often a strategy intended to persuade, while genuine kindness expects nothing in return.

Watch for loan sharking, another concept from The Gift of Fear. This occurs when someone does favours, buys gifts, or provides help that you did not ask for, then expects gratitude, access, attention, or compliance in return. Healthy generosity is freely given without creating a sense of obligation.

Becker also discusses typecasting, a manipulation tactic where someone makes a subtle negative comment in order to provoke you into proving them wrong. For example, "You're probably too busy to talk," or "You seem like someone who wouldn't give people a chance." The goal is often to influence your behaviour by triggering a need to defend yourself.

The most important lesson from The Gift of Fear is simple: trust your instincts. If you feel pressured, confused, manipulated, or unsafe, you do not need to justify those feelings. Your intuition exists to protect you. Healthy relationships feel respectful, safe, and consistent. When something feels off, listen to that inner voice, it recognizes danger before your conscious mind can explain it.

What If You Deserved Your Own Compassion

by Rebecca Pink, Registered Provisional Psychologist

When was the last time that you offered yourself the same kindness that you so freely give to others?

Most of us don't hesitate to comfort a friend who is struggling. We remind them that they're doing their best, reassure them that difficult times don't last forever, and gently encourage them to keep going. We can look into someone else's eyes, recognize their pain, and meet it with empathy, endless compassion, and love. Yet when we look in the mirror, that compassion can be dimmed or disappear altogether.

I've come to appreciate that self-compassion isn't something we master; it's something we practice. I'm reminded of that truth in conversations with clients every day. Beneath anxiety, stress, perfectionism, or self-doubt, there's often a quiet but a relentless inner voice whispering that we should be doing more, achieving more, or somehow being more. Over time, that voice becomes so familiar that we mistake it for the truth.

Here's the irony: many of us already know what helps us feel better. We know we need rest, connection, movement, creativity, or time in nature. Yet we convince ourselves we haven't earned those things until we've accomplished just one more task or met one more expectation.

But what if healing doesn't begin with doing more?

What if it begins by changing the way we speak to ourselves?

Self-compassion isn't about lowering our standards or making excuses. It's about recognizing our shared humanity. We stumble. We all carry lived experiences that others cannot see. And we all deserve the same grace we so naturally extend to the people that we care about.

This month, I invite you to pause when that inner critic begins to speak. Ask yourself: "Would I say these words to someone that I love?" If the answer is no, perhaps it's time to choose a kinder response.

Because maybe the compassion you so freely give to everyone else is the very compassion you've been needing and deserving all along. Take good care of yourself.

The Emotional Side of Money: Fear, Confidence, Stress, and the Roles They Play

by Karen Boudewyn, Senior Wealth Advisor

Money decisions are rarely driven by logic alone. While we often tell ourselves we'll act based on facts and analysis, emotions tend to lead, with logic following behind to justify the decision. Fear, confidence, stress, and subtle daily triggers all influence how we spend, save, and invest and often without conscious awareness.

Understanding this isn't about removing emotion from financial decisions. It's about recognizing its role so we can respond more intentionally rather than react automatically.

Fear and Financial Paralysis

Fear is one of the most powerful forces in financial decision-making, and it often shows up quietly as hesitation rather than panic.

It can lead to:

- Delaying investing decisions.
- Avoiding financial planning conversations.
- Holding excessive cash for "safety."
- Not reviewing accounts or progress.

For example, after a market downturn, many investors step back and wait for things to feel more stable. The challenge is that markets often recover before confidence returns, meaning opportunities are missed. Fear is designed to protect us but in financial planning, it can also keep us stuck.

Confidence and the Ability to Act

On the other side of fear is confidence. Financial confidence allows individuals to make decisions, stay consistent, and navigate uncertainty more effectively.

Confidence often shows up as:

- Following a long-term plan despite market volatility.
- Making timely financial decisions.
- Staying invested during uncertain periods.
- Focusing on strategy rather than short-term noise.

Importantly, confidence doesn't come from knowing everything. It comes from having clarity and structure. A well-designed financial plan reduces uncertainty and provides a framework for decision-making, even when emotions are present.

Emotional Triggers and Everyday Spending

Many financial decisions happen in small, everyday moments not major life events. These decisions are often emotionally driven.

Common triggers include:

- Stress: "I deserve this" spending.
- Boredom: impulse purchases.
- Celebration: reward spending.
- Comparison: keeping up with others.

In the moment, these behaviours feel justified. Over time, they can create patterns that quietly impact long-term financial outcomes.

The Impact of Stress on Financial Thinking

Stress has a direct effect on how we make decisions. When stress levels rise, our thinking becomes more reactive and short-term focused.

This can lead to:

- Avoiding financial decisions altogether.
- Making quick, emotionally driven purchases.
- Abandoning long-term plans during uncertainty.
- Focusing on immediate relief instead of future outcomes.

Stress narrows our perspective, making it harder to evaluate decisions clearly or stay aligned with long-term goals.

The Brain Chemistry Behind Money Decisions

There is also a biological layer influencing financial behaviour. Our brains use chemical signals that affect how we respond to money-related situations.

- Dopamine drives reward-seeking behaviour (impulse spending, chasing quick gains).
- Cortisol is released during stress (fear-based decisions, avoidance, hesitation).
- Serotonin supports feelings of stability and confidence (calm, consistent, long-term decision-making).

These systems are essential for survival, but they are not designed for long-term financial planning. Understanding them helps explain why even well-intentioned individuals sometimes act against their own best interests.

Bringing Awareness to Emotional Patterns

The goal is not to eliminate emotion that's neither realistic nor necessary. Instead, the objective is to build awareness and create structure, so emotions don't dictate decisions.

Simple strategies can make a meaningful difference:

- Pausing before making financial decisions.
- Noticing patterns around spending and stress.
- Creating a clear financial plan with defined goals.
- Automating savings and investment contributions.

Over time, consistency matters more than perfection. Small, intentional actions help build both confidence and better financial habits. Money is not just mathematical, it's emotional. When you begin to understand how fear, confidence, and stress shape your financial behaviour, you gain more control over your decisions and your long-term outcomes.

The goal isn't to remove emotion, it's to make better decisions alongside it.

Beat The Heat: Simple Ways to Make Your Home More Climate Ready

by The City of Calgary

Hot weather can make homes uncomfortable, and health risks increase during extreme heat. The City of Calgary's Climate Ready Home Program resources can help you take practical steps to stay more comfortable at home and prepare for hotter summers.

At calgary.ca/ClimateReadyHome, you can:

- Use the Home Self-Evaluation Tool to get a personalized checklist for your home.
- Download the Climate Ready Home Guide for advice on maintenance, renovations, and upgrades.
- Explore the Virtual Climate Ready Home for ideas that can help improve comfort and resilience.

These resources include practical, non-emergency guidance to help you plan ahead—from simple low-cost actions to bigger home improvements over time. For emergency preparedness tips, visit calgary.ca/getready. Learn more at calgary.ca/climatereadyhome.

Summer is the season for politicians to get out into their constituencies and hear what's on people's minds. And healthcare has been coming up a lot in my conversations in Calgary-Currie.

People talk about not having a family doctor, long wait times in the emergency department, and a cumbersome and confusing system to navigate. They talk about staff who are stressed out, overworked, and frustrated by the never-ending reorganization.

I also hear from people who are disappointed at the waste. Where there was once one ministry, there are now four. Tens of millions of dollars spent, only to cancel a project, like with the Emergency Health Services rebrand. And we still don't know precisely how much has been spent on private consultants to do all this restructuring.

Meanwhile, Alberta is officially a two-tier system with its dual-practice model whereby physicians can have a foot in both public and private service delivery. To shorten wait times, we should resolve the reason for vacant operating rooms and work on workforce retention. Facilitating private practice does neither of these.

We should always strive for a health care system that is coordinated and patient centred. Public healthcare is a core Canadian promise, and governments have a duty to protect it.

That's why the Alberta NDP Caucus is proud of our vision for healthcare, the development of which was led by Dr. Luanne Metz, who was a neurologist and researcher before being elected as MLA for Calgary-Varsity in 2023. We'll have more to say in the coming weeks on our plans for healthcare that will ensure every Albertan can access timely, high-quality care.

The Alberta NDP Caucus will always defend a fair and equitable, publicly funded healthcare system that works for all Albertans.

Please don't hesitate to reach out to my office at calgary.currie@assembly.ab.ca any time with your ideas, issues, or concerns.
