YOU'RE DEALING WITH ME.

I'm Adam, your Silverado neighbour. Silverado has been my home for 20 years. I'm a Bishop O'Byrne graduate, and my parents built one of Silverado's first homes. Helping this community and maintaining my reputation matters to me.

Homes here have incredible solar potential. On the right home, solar can reduce or even ELIMINATE purchased electricity costs as soon as it's installed. I'll walk you through project cost and savings, while protecting you from aggressive sales tactics.

Alberta's growing data-center industry could seriously increase electricity demand. Generating your own power can help reduce your exposure to changing energy prices—or even take advantage of them. I'm here to make that decision clear.

WITH YOU, EVERY STEP OF THE WAY.

I'll be here from our first conversation through installation and beyond—answering questions, explaining your options, and helping you make informed decisions. Your best interests come first, including an honest answer if solar isn't right for your home. You won't have to take my word for it, I'll show you the numbers.

Beyond the Impression: Van Gogh and Post-Impressionism

by Kristina Quapp

Van Gogh is an artist that needs no introduction, but the style of his work is a different story. Vincent's style is commonly mislabelled as impressionist, where the more accurate classification would be post-impressionist. Impressionism is a 19th-century art movement that featured a strong focus on lighting, thick brush strokes, unblended colours, and everyday modern subjects painted outdoors (en plein air). As most art movements do, impressionism built upon the foundations of the realist movement which took place about 20 to 30 years prior. Realist painters preferred working en plein air as it allowed them to capture natural light and unvarnished everyday life, while pushing back on traditional academy standards that forced what some considered artificial compositions. While both art styles feature an emphasis on lighting and capturing the environment, impressionists did not focus as heavily on the realistic details.

Though Van Gogh's work certainly captures elements of impressionism such as thick brush strokes and vivid colours, his work often pushed the boundaries of impressionism. For example, Claude Monet, the founder of the impressionist movement, features large brush strokes, but the lighting remains grounded. As can be seen in Monet's 1875 oil painting, Woman with a Parasol, the piece is heavily stylized. Brush strokes are visible and the hues are vibrant, but the edge light and shadow in front of the woman tells the viewer that Monet focused on realism when capturing the atmosphere. In contrast, Vincent's The Starry Night—while it maintains impasto as Monet did—exhibits even more vibrant colour contrast and his sentiment at the time, represented in weighty brush strokes. It's often conferred that The Starry Night is symbolic of Van Gogh's inner turmoil, given the swirling and turbulent skies, thick impasto brush strokes, and the large looming cypress tree outlined in red.

Vincent's The Garden of Saint Paul's Hospital, often referred to as Leaf-Fall, features inspired aspects from traditional Japanese woodblock prints. Van Gogh implements an elevated perspective and tree trunks that are abruptly cut off by the lower and upper edges of the canvas, eliminating the horizon line. These artistic choices create a compressed sense of space similar to the arrangements found in Japanese print designs.

Like the changing landscape around him, Van Gogh's work had moved beyond simply capturing a fleeting impression of the world. His colours became bolder, his brushwork more expressive, and his paintings increasingly shaped by emotion and personal interpretation. This October, as the leaves begin to fall, perhaps take a moment to look at the world around you—not only as it appears, but through the impression it leaves on you.

Healthy Relationship for our Children

by Nancy Bergeron, R.Psych | info@nancybergeron.ca

How Does My Relationship with My Partner Affect My Children?

Children learn about relationships long before they begin having relationships of their own. They watch how their parents speak to one another, handle disagreements, show affection, repair hurts, and navigate life's challenges. The relationship between parents becomes one of the first models children have for understanding what love, safety, trust, and partnership look like.

A healthy marriage does not mean a marriage without conflict. In fact, children can benefit from seeing that disagreements are a normal part of relationships when those disagreements are handled with respect and ultimately repaired.

Children Feel Safer When Their Parents' Relationship Feels Secure

A strong parental relationship can provide children with an important emotional foundation. When children experience their parents as a team who care about one another and are committed to working through difficulties, they are more likely to experience their family as a safe and predictable place.

This sense of security gives children room to focus on the important work of childhood: learning, exploring, developing friendships, making mistakes, and discovering who they are.

Children Learn How Healthy Relationships Work

Children are constantly observing. They notice whether parents listen to each other, express appreciation, apologize when they are wrong, and respect one another's boundaries.

When parents demonstrate healthy communication, children learn that it is possible to express difficult feelings without attacking or humiliating another person. They learn that differences do not have to threaten a relationship and that problems can be discussed and resolved.

These lessons become part of their developing understanding of relationships.

Children Learn Resilience by Watching Parents' Repair

One of the most powerful lessons parents can provide is not perfection, it is repair.

Parents will sometimes become frustrated, misunderstand each other, or say something they wish they had said differently. When children see their parents take responsibility, apologize, listen, and reconnect, they learn an important message: relationships can experience difficulty without falling apart.

This is a foundation for resilience.

Children begin to understand that mistakes are not necessarily disasters, conflict can be managed, and difficult emotions can be worked through.

A Healthy Relationship Creates Emotional Space for Parenting

When parents feel connected and supported by one another, they often have greater emotional resources available for their children. A strong partnership can make it easier to share parenting responsibilities, problem-solve together, and support one another through the inevitable stresses of raising a family.

This doesn't mean parents must agree on everything. Healthy couples can have different perspectives while still communicating respect and presenting a united commitment to their children's wellbeing.

Children Don't Need Perfect Parents

Perhaps most importantly, children don't need a perfect marriage. They need parents who are willing to keep learning, growing, communicating, and repairing.

A healthy relationship between parents can teach children that love is not simply about getting along when everything is easy. It is about showing up, listening, taking responsibility, extending compassion, and finding your way back to one another after difficult moments.

When parents invest in the health of their relationship, they are not only strengthening their marriage, they are helping their children develop the emotional security, relationship skills, and resilience they will carry into the rest of their lives.

Keeping Bus Zones Clear Near Schools

by The City of Calgary

School and transit buses rely on clear bus zones to safely load and unload passengers. When vehicles stop or park in bus zones, buses may be forced to stop in traffic, putting children and passengers at risk. Bus zones are designated safety areas that must remain clear at all times. Respecting these zones helps protect children, supports accessible transit, and keeps traffic moving predictably. Parking legally and avoiding bus zones—even for short stops—helps create safer school environments for everyone. Learn more: calgaryparking.com/safeschools.

The School Patrol Program helps improve safety in school zones by focusing on education first.

School zones are designed to protect children. Parking rules help:

- Keep crosswalks and corners visible.
- Reduce congestion and sudden stops.
- Support safer crossings for kids and families.

Parking safety and compliance officers attend schools during busy dropoff and pickup times to:

- Remind drivers about safe and legal parking.
- Explain why certain rules exist.
- Answer questions from parents, caregivers, and school communities.

With over 150 elementary schools across the city, patrols can't be everywhere every day. Unsafe parking, like blocking crosswalks, doubleparking or stopping in noparking zones makes it harder for drivers to see children and for children to see cars.

Planning and Development Services are Gathering Community Feedback

by The City of Calgary

The City of Calgary is conducting a Planning and Development Public Service Satisfaction Survey to better understand the experience of Community Associations and how information from the City related to local planning and development is used. Feedback will be reviewed to improve City service offerings. Comments and suggestions aim to help improve:

- The clarity and accessibility of planning information available to the public.
- The types of information related to planning and development provided by the City.
- How we communicate opportunities for public participation.
- Overall experience of interacting with our services.

Complete the survey at calgary.questionpro.ca/CalgaryPlanningSurvey until December 31. The survey is available online only and can be completed anytime. It will take approximately 5 to 20 minutes to complete depending on your responses, and your participation is entirely voluntary. Answers and comments will remain confidential, and you will not be personally identified. For more information about our survey and to register for the Partners in Planning (PIP) free certificate program that helps you understand how planning and development works in your community, go to calgary.ca/planning/planning-liaison-program.
